TRUE DEVOTION.

Giuseppine Pilachini Compels her Lover to Slash her Face

AND MAR HER BEAUTY FOREYER.

So that she Would not Have to Marry the Man her Father Chose for Her. and who only Loved her Because she was Pretty--Her Lover was True to her, and After Many Years Have Passed Declares that the Scarred Face is More Beautiful to Him than the Face of any Other Woman,

NEW YORK, March 14.-In front of a dingy row of tenement houses on President street, between Columbia and Van Brunt streets, Brooklyn, nearly half a hundred Italians-men, women and dirty little children-stood last night vociferously welcoming and praising a tall, slender young man, who stood laughing and bowing to the crowd of his countryfolk, but at the same time keeping careful hold of the young woman at his side.

The girl had evidently been in this country only a very short time, for her holiday dress was almost an exact copy of that of the Neapolitan flower girls on of that of the Neapolitan Hower girls on a feast day. The right side of her face was beautiful in outline and charming in color, but when she turned there could be seen extending from her temple to her chin a broad scar, whose edges, drawn together, made a line of hideous wrinkles. So near to the eye ran the scar that the lower lid was frown down, giving an univ legring drawn down, giving an ugly leering expression in awful contrast to the beauty of the other cheek.

It was this scar that all the men, wo-men and children are chattering about, men and children are chattering about, and which was also a source of fond pride to the girl herself. Had it not been for the scar the girl would have been married to a well-to-do farmer near Naples, and the young Italian would be either broken-hearted or a murderer. And this is the story that the South Brooklyn Italian colony was chattering about. chattering about.

Gitseppine Pilachini is the daughter of an old fisherman in Naples, who had saved enough money to build a little better cottage than his fellow fishermen, and Giuseppine, less than a year ago, was known as the prettiest of all the pretty girls in Naples. Augustino Car-ninelli worked for old mar Pilachini and overy day that the lateen-rigged fishing boat came back from work Augusting boat came back from work Aug-ustino was more and more in love with Giuseppine. Finally the old fisherman discovered the young couple making love, and was furious, as he intended Giuseppine for a wealthy grape grower, who had fallen in love with her, but who had fallen in love with her, but whom she hated thoroughly.

The father was determined, however. The day for the wedding drew near and the hearts of the young couple were filled with desperation. Augustino had a heart full of love, but he had little money. They could not remaway. Three days before the wedding was to have taken place Giuseppine met her lover behind the big pile of fishing boats and handed him a knife, saying:

"It is only for my face Francisco loves me. Make me ugly with this knife and he will give me up."

Fearful lest the girl should cut her-

he will give me up."

Fearful lest the girl should cut herself, Augustino seized the knife and threw it far out into the bay. Unlike the product of our civilization he would not mar the beauty of the girl he loved, even if he could not marry her. The girl repeated her pleadings the next night, painting in warm words the hap-piness that would be theirs if the per-sistent wine grower was out of the way, until Augustino, mad with jealous rage, determined to kill his rival. Somehow he did not get a chance, and the next night—her wedding eve—Giuseppine pleaded again for her own disfigurement. She hated her own beauty because it stood between herself and her cause it stood between herself and her cause it stood between herself and her own happiness. At last, in a wild fit of desperation, Augustino seized the knife, and, with one broad sweep of the blade. gashed the lovely face from temple to chin.

As they suspected, Francisco refused to marry a girl so disfigured, but Augustino was tried, and sentenced to three years in prison, and his marriage seemed as far off as before. All the time he was in prison Giuseppine worked and saved, and when the three years had expired she met her lover at the prison gate, and putting her little savings in his hands had him get savings in his hands bade him go to America and earn enough to send for her. He refused, unless she married him before he left Naples, and as they walked toward the city they met a wandering padre, who made them man wandering padre, who made them man and wife.

After a short twenty-four hours of married life, Augustino left Naples on a coasting vessel, and finally made his way to this country, which he reached about six months ago. His countrymen heard his story and found him work, and meanwhile he saved every cent, until at last he had enough to send for his young wife. Her father refused to let ber leave, and locked her in their little cottage, but the girl who would sacrifice her beauty for her love, laughed at the old jailor, and one night stole out and away to friends, who helped her to find the way to this country.

Day before yesterday she reached New York, and yesterday went to the two little rooms that Augustino had prepared for her in the President street tenement. Her story had come before her, and all the men and women wanted to see her and talk to her, and is why, her rooms being small, she held her in formal receptions on the sidewalk, and all the men praised her and thereby made the women envious and sorry they had called her out. But she is happy, and Augustino swears that the side of her face that bears the scar is prettige than the other and after leave prettier than the other and either love-lier than the cheeks of any other wo-man in the South Brooklyn Italian colony.

Fly Wheel Bursts.

CINCINNATI, O., March 14.—Shortly before I o'clock this morning the gigantic fly wheel at the Cincinnati electric light works, at the corner of Hunt and Broadway, burst with destructive effect. It smashed a $10,000 steam engine, destroyed the office, crushed several dynamos and knocked out one side of the building. The direct loss may foot up nearly $20,000. There were narrow es-capes, but no one hurt.

And the Loaded Elevator Fell, Killing and Injuring Five Persons.

Sr. Louis, March 14 .- A terrible accident occurred this morning in the boller making citablishment of Rohan Bros., corner of Collins and Carr streets, by which three workmen were killed and two boys severely wounded. It appears that the boys had started down from the second story with the large freight elevator on which was half a ton of iron plates, and just as the elevator moved the rope broke and platform, iron and boys all rushed down far beneath with a horrible crash. The elevator was a large open concern The elevator was a large open concern and as it fell, three workmen were standing under it and were caught and crushed beneath the weight and in-stantly killed. He is Pronounced Insune by His Brother and Other Physicians. . Cfucago, March 14.—Dr. Doremus Scudder, brother of Dr. H. M. Scudder, now confined in the county jail charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dunton, made affidavit before Judge Scales in the county court to-day to the effect that it was his opinion and that of other competent physicians that his brother was insane. The prisoner asked that his removal from the jail to the detention hospital be ordered as the jail was an unsuitable place for him. The court said that if the sheriff would subscribe to such a statement the order would be made, not otherwise. Sheriff Gilbert declined to take any action in the matter until he had consulted his attorney.

The dealings in the stock market to-day were neither large nor important, and while itselding during the forenoon was unusually active its advance was in no way in conformity with the autount of business done. The interest in the market was confined to a few stocks which Reading, Lackawanna, Richmond & West Point and Tennessee Coal were more prominent. There were two weak points in the list, and these were Lake Shore and Chicago Gas. Among the late advances, one in Missouri Pacific was very marked, but the market falled to display any general tendency in prices and the movement, such as they were, were throughout the most irregular character. The advances in the coal stocks induced free realizations toward the final dealings, but the most part were realized and the buying by insiders helped to make the downward movement a short one. The close was quiet and firm generally at insignificant changes, generally at close to the best prices of the day.

Cincago. I.L., March 14.—Wheat was firm in the early trading, but the market broke later, becoming very weak and closing so with a lors of 1½c compared with Saturday's last figures. The early firmness was due to the better prices at Liverpool and cold wave which covered most of the wheat belt, west and southwest. This was about all there was in the way of news for a considerable time, and as domestic markets generally showed an advancing tendency, the local feeling was for a time rather buillish. Generous seiling, weaker cables and light export movement from New York caused the market later to become weak and it sagged off maturially.
